Will you dare to try the Peak Lenin summit? Every year, this mountain, located in the south of Kyrgyzstan and considered as the most accessible 7000m peak in the world, attracts many alpinists. Although the climb is not very technical, it requires a strong mountaineering experience. Climbing Peak Lenin takes several days, with hikes of 7 to 9 hours each day, and over 1,000m altitude to climb each day. The first days of the program are dedicated to progressive acclimatization, with ascents to camps 1 and 2.

This 22 day tour is for those ready to take up a towering challenge, and in a good physical shape.
